

Bibliography of the Built Culture of the New World Dutch Cultural Hearth

Compiled by Walter Richard Wheeler
(July 2023 version)

Introduction

This bibliography includes references to buildings and construction in all of those areas which are within the New World Dutch Cultural Hearth (NWDCH), which includes areas along the Hudson, Mohawk and Schoharie valleys in New York, and northern New Jersey. Adjacent areas, including counties in western New England abutting New York, are also included, as they share aspects of their construction history with the NWDCH.

Included are books, journal articles, theses, dissertations, archeological reports, historic structure reports and conference papers which deal principally with the built culture of the NWDCH. Archeological reports are only included if they contain a substantial amount of information on buildings or built culture. Books on associated material culture studies have been included only if they include built or material culture as a substantial part of their topic. Pattern books and builder's manuals are included only if their content substantively reflects regional building practices.

Monographs on architects or individual buildings designed by architects are NOT included at this time, but may be in the future. Inclusion in this bibliography does not constitute an endorsement of the research or conclusions presented by the various authors.

Items in the bibliography are organized by county. Items which address resources and topics covering multiple counties are located at the end of the bibliography in a section entitled Regional Studies.

Consult <http://www.hmvarch.org/dendro.html> for pdfs of dendrochronological reports for structures within our study area. HABS/HAER documentation for many structures within our study area can be found at http://memory.loc.gov/ammem/collections/habs_haer/

This bibliography is an ongoing work. Suggestions and contributions sent to me at wwheeler@hartgen.com are welcome and encouraged.
